CONGRESSIONAL.

House.

The bill for the relief of Mrs. [illegible], widow of President Polk, allowing her $1,000 for supplies furnished the army in [illegible] the rebellion was passed.

Hunton moved to lay on the table [illegible] to reconsider the vote for printing of testimony taken before the judiciary committee.

Tags suggested that the motion be withdrawn until the gentleman from Maine should be present. Blaine at this moment entered the hall and took his seat with the declaration "Here I am."

Burchard raised the question of [illegible], claiming that private business had [illegible] for the House and that under the rules it was not in order to any purpose other business.

In the course of the parliamentary squabble over this and other points of order Blaine insisted that under the ruling of the chair yesterday he was entitled to be heard [illegible] control of [illegible]

Speaker pro tem. [illegible] read from the record of Friday's proceedings to show what Blaine [illegible] had stated that if he did not call up the motion to reconsider yesterday he would lose the parliamentary right to which he was entitled.

Blaine asked Hunton whether he insisted on his motion to lay on the table.

Hunton replied he did.

Blaine—You decline to accept my amendment.

Hunton—I have told you before what I was willing to do about that.

Blaine then fell back upon the assurance of the Speaker yesterday that he (Blaine) would not be deprived of the opportunity of calling up his motion to reconsider.

Speaker pro tem.—The only assurance given by the Chair was that which has been read from the record, and that was in accordance with the rules.

Randall of Pennsylvania reminded Blaine that in entering his motion to reconsider the other day, he (Blaine) had taken advantage of Hunton's omission to make the usual motion to reconsider and lay on the table.

Blaine—How did I take advantage of it? I went and asked the clerk about it.

Randall—I know exactly that.

Blaine—Well, what advantage did I take?

Randall—You took advantage of Hunton's omission to make the usual motion. I admit that you could do that.

Blaine—Was that any more advantage than acting under any rule of the House?

Randall—One moment, having taken that advantage I submit that the motion of the gentleman from Virginia is entirely within the practice and entirely within due courtesy; also it is taking advantage to-day of the gentleman from Maine in moving to lay his motion on the table. Now as to Caldwell's telegram, I understand the gentleman from Virginia to be willing to let the telegram go into the proceedings for what it is worth.

Blaine—It could not go for more. [Laughter.]

Randall—I don't yet understand that the gentleman from Virginia objects to the telegram going in.

Blaine—But I call the attention of the gentleman from Pennsylvania to the fact that neither the chairman of the judiciary committee nor the chairman of the sub-committee has ever yet intimated or given to the House any advice of that telegram.

Randall—Will the gentleman from Maine ask the House now that the telegram be embodied in the proceedings of the committee?

Blaine—I am after that very thing and I want the official telegram. The gentleman from Kentucky (Knott) after keeping it in his pocket five days [illegible] calls to order from the Democratic side, seconded by the [illegible] Speaker's gavel, gave it, as I understand, to the Associated Press, but has never given it to the House.

Glover and other Democratic members rose to a question of order, but Blaine held his position, and in the midst of great uproar and confusion asserted that all the members on the Democratic side of the House were out of order.

After several stormy and exciting scenes in which the audience in the galleries hissed and applauded without the slightest regard for the efforts of the Chair to preserve order the House settled down to voting by yeas and nays. The Republicans at first resorted to the plan of withholding their votes so as to defeat any action, but did not persist in this policy, and consequently Hunton's motion to lay on the table was carried—125 to 91.

Scene in the House of Representatives.

The following scene occurred before the vote on the Blaine matter. The Speaker pro tem required the gentleman from Maine and other members who were standing, to take their seats, and added the gentleman from Maine was out of order and that no one knew it better than himself.

Blackburn demanded to be informed whether the utterances of a member delivered out of order should be published in the record?

The Speaker replied that there were no rules on the subject. He added that when he gave the House assurance yesterday that he would recognize the gentleman from Maine to call up his motion to reconsider he did not mean to preclude nor could he preclude any other member from moving at the proper time to lay the motion to reconsider on the table. How he asked could he take the gentleman from Virginia off the floor?

Blaine—The gentleman from Virginia can very easily make his motion otherwise.

Hunton called for the regular order.

Wilson of Iowa rose and was informed by the Speaker that the pending motion was not debatable. He said, however, that he only desired to raise the question of consideration on this business for he did not believe that the majority of the House would shut off the gentleman from Maine from a hearing.

The Speaker—The objection comes too late.

Wilson—How so?

The Speaker—Because the motion to lay on the table is pending.

Southard—I desire a word in explanation of what took place yesterday. The gentleman from Maine insisted yesterday on calling up his motion to reconsider and one of the reasons alleged by him why he should have that right was that he would lose it if he did not exercise it then.

Blaine—And the chair assured me otherwise.

Speaker—The chair did not assure you otherwise. The gentleman states what the record does not show.

He has lost the floor and has no right to claim it to-day.

Kasson renewed the point of order made by Buckner, that under rule of the House only private business was in order to-day and that therefore it was not in order to call up this matter of general business.

The Speaker overruled the point of order.

Blaine—(forcibly)—On what ground?

Speaker—(cooly)—The chair is not bound to give its reasons.

Blaine (scornfully)—I never heard a Speaker refuse to give reasons for his decisions.

Speaker (severely)—The gentleman is out of order now. [Applause on Democratic side.]

Blaine (irritatingly)—Have you any reason?

Speaker (more severely)—The gentleman has no right to make a colloquy with the chair.

Blaine—The chair does not seem disposed to hear a colloquy.

The Speaker finally put the question to the House on Hunton's motion and as Garfield called for the yeas and nays they were ordered. The Republicans then resorted to the plan of withholding their votes so as to defeat the action by the want of a quorum. After the roll was called, but before the announcement of the result, Springer rose to a parliamentary inquiry, when Blaine immediately started to his feet and objected to it. At this demonstration Springer suggested to Blaine he was entirely forgetting his position, and the Speaker explained that it was always the practice of the chair to hear a parliamentary inquiry.

Blaine—During roll call? Never.

Speaker—Roll call has been completed.

Blaine—Never has such thing been done.

Speaker (with great severity of manner)—It is highly improper and hardly decent for the gentleman to confer with the chair in that peculiar style.

Blaine—The gentleman's (Springer's) inquiry is mostly decent.

Springer—I deny the gentleman's right to impugn my motives.

Blaine—The clerk has the vote ready and I demand that it be announced.

The Speaker—The Chair cannot announce the vote before it is handed to him.

Blaine—The vote has been ready. I demand that it be announced. [Shouts of order, order from the Democratic side of the House.]

Springer—I demand that the gentleman from Maine take his seat and be in order.

Blaine—I am in order.

The Speaker—If the gentleman from Maine will not take his seat when he is properly called to order the Chair will not only require him to do so under the rules but will call on the officers of the House to enforce its orders. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

Foster (in an undertone)—Call them in; fetch them on.

Blaine (taking seat)—I will be seated with pleasure when order is here.

Speaker—The gentleman from Maine stated that the Chair should have announced the vote before the Chair received it. The Chair had not the vote at the time the imputation was made, which was intended to go the country as an imputation of unfairness of the Chair. The Chair now proceeds to announce the vote upon the question which was for the first time handed to him, and all statements to the contrary are positively and infamously false. The Chair says so on its honor. [Applause on Democratic side.]

Blaine (tauntingly)—That is very parliamentary language.

The vote was then announced.

The Union county Sentinel says: A private note from J. I. Carter, now extensively engaged in furnishing water to the miners in the vicinity of Malheur City, Baker county, informs us that the miners are very busy at work, and the prospects for a good summer's work in the mining camps are good. Business prospects in this section of country were never better. Hundreds of men can find profitable employment in our adjoining mining camps, and there is room for thousands who desire to engage in farming and stock raising.

John Morgan, a Mormon tramp, writes the organ of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Frauds that he has been engaged in planting corn for the Hoosiers in Indiana.

CINCINNATI CONVENTION.

Prospects of the Nomination of Blaine, Morton, et al.

[illegible] editorial: The nomination [illegible] is extremely probable. His nomination [illegible] it is inconsistent [illegible] I move to take [illegible] He is more than any other [illegible] Let the Republican party [illegible] to talk of making a canvass [illegible] Reforming is sheer nonsense. [illegible] the party. Blaine has refrained from any pretense of reform, retrenchment and economy [illegible] He [illegible] to call the party to the defense of the party's [illegible] and appeal to the most intense sentiment of party hate for the aggressive element in the campaign. He goes before the country squarely on the old sectional issue of [illegible] between the North and the South and invokes the memories of the war to cover the [illegible] administration. Many good people in the North would rather see the public [illegible] consummation of [illegible] than have a man who fought in the rebel army find him out. The canvass is to be against the [illegible] and its works. If Washburne is chosen he appears as Grant's patron, friend and [illegible] member of the Cabinet and foreign minister under the administration. It is idle to talk of reformation of its abuses through his leadership. Conkling can only be nominated by Grant's aid and will prove the faithful servant of the administration. Morton's chief pride is in the history of the party, and he is another Blaine without Blaine's popularity. The meaning of the contest must still be the same, still there would be something of a contest.

With the nomination of a southerner like Bristow, who has uncovered the nakedness of his party, the strength of the Republicans would be gone. Its own shame would be acknowledged and its power of attacking the Democracy gone.

Conkling Wants no Shepherd.

Conkling is reported to be greatly annoyed at the story that Boss Shepherd has gone to Cincinnati to work for him. It is said he is anxious for an emphatic contradiction of it. Shepherd made a speech here yesterday in which he said he was going to Cincinnati to work for the candidate who is worthy to fill the chair as well as Grant had filled it.

Health Certificate Issued to Morton.

Objections having been made to Morton as a candidate on account of his health, he has received a letter from his physicians showing he has steadily improved for two years past.

Delegates Arriving at Cincinnati.

The Times Cincinnati special says: Some of the Nevada delegates have arrived, but their leader Jones has not yet appeared. When he does, Nevada, which is now flying around loose, will rendezvous at the luxurious house he has engaged on Vine street. Jones is for Conkling, and the natural consequence is that Nevada is for Conkling.

Rumor of Blaine Preparing a New Sensation.

The friends of all the candidates are greatly agitated by the rumor which gained currency to-day that Blaine is about to undertake a more dramatic role than any he has yet assumed. The story at first was merely that Blaine's friends [illegible] here. It was at the time scoffed at by all, believed by none. But it came from so many different quarters that it speedily became something more than a chimera. The next inquiry was as to what he was coming for, and everybody said he could be for nothing else than to enter the convention as a substitute and withdraw in favor of some one of the other candidates. The programme as marked out generally for this theatrical episode is that Blaine will wait until all other candidates are named and that then some one of his delegates will announce in the usual way that the Pine Tree State proposes the name of her gifted and distinguished son J. G. Blaine, whereupon that gentleman, rendering his thanks for the great honor, withdraws his own name and seconds the nomination of some one else. The majority believe it will be Hayes, a few think Bristow, no one supposes it will be Conkling or Morton, and there has been a hint that it may be Washburne, provided he is nominated by some State, which does not seem probable. All this is given as simply showing that Blaine is out of the race. It is said there has been a serious break in Blaine's lines and the Mortonites claim a majority of the delegation from Illinois. Illinois will not, however, be here in full force before Monday, and nothing definite on this point before that day can be ascertained. The Walnut Street House refused to receive the Alabama delegation because some are negroes. The other great hotels take all delegates without regard to color. The pressure for Bristow is very strong.

The Rumor Contradicted.

The Times Washington special says Blaine never thought of going to Cincinnati. The Times specials from the respective capitals intimate Blaine is losing ground in Michigan and Virginia. Neither Conkling nor Morton gain by dropping Blaine.

Pools on the Nomination.

The Times Philadelphia special says: Pools in several places to-night sold at about the following rates: Hartranft $8, Blaine $21, Conkling $11, field $1. In some instances Washburne was sold at a low figure.

Bristow.

The Times says rumors prevail that Bristow has resigned, but are discredited.

Blaine Lies.

Reviewing Blaine letters the Times says editorially: Blaine took a commission amounting to nearly half the value of the bonds which he sold. He was engaged in a kind of stock jobbing, about as respectable a business as policy dealer. As a Presidential candidate we must consider him as out of the question in spite of the elaborate protestations of Jay Gould's newspaper that nothing had been proved against him and the sneaking apologies which Tom Scott's newspaper makes for a man who until very recently it consistently reviled.

In another article the Times says the story that Blaine is going to Cincinnati is probably untrue, but is evidence of two facts: first, that Blaine is generally expected to fail in the end of the contest he has conducted so far with such remarkable courage and persistence; second, that his recent coup in the House has prepared people's minds to believe him capable of anything startling and unexpected.

The Tribune's Washington correspondent thinks Blaine finds it convenient to give as much time as is necessary to anybody who hopes to be able to get the advantage of him. It is observed that no other candidate is attacked; that Bristow, Conkling, Morton, and others are disregarded, and while all the Democrats from Proctor Knott up and down say they hope Blaine will be nominated at Cincinnati it is observed that they are doing according to their understanding all they can to prevent such a result. After Tarbox concluded to-day, Frye asked him a few questions, but the young member in trying to answer, being outside his notes, made a pitiful exhibit. When Blaine took the floor he treated Tarbox with most exasperating contempt. His contemptuous treatment of Tarbox and his whole speech is so marked and cutting that all admit that Tarbox has gone to join the noble army of political corpses that strew Blaine's path. Even the Democrats say Tarbox was unmercifully thrashed.

The Fight for the Nomination.

The Tribune's Cincinnati special says: The Conkling men are spending much money and will keep up the scandals against Blaine to the last and hope to have the contest finally narrowed down to Conkling and Morton. Morton men though are less confident. The Cincinnati people oddly enough are for Bristow, not for Hayes. In half of the shop windows Bristow's picture is displayed. The Hayes movement has apparently no strength at all here and very little in the State. A well informed gentleman who does not support Blaine said to-day that the ex-speaker will have from 10 to 20 votes from the Ohio delegation.

The Herald

Says, sententiously, that Blaine has constituted himself a committee for the investigation of the Confederate House and will soon make a report. Bristow would make a better reform candidate for the Presidency if he were to resign his position as Secretary of the Treasury. How can he reform the administration of which he is a prominent member.

The Herald's Washington special says the Democrats are utterly disgusted at the result of Tarbox's speech. A good deal of quiet and good natured advice was tendered to Tarbox in advance, that he should be careful of essaying a task beyond his strength in coping with a veteran and alert speaker, and some who knew his former powers for controversy were reminded of the boy who defied the locomotive and admired his pluck but doubted his judgment. One facetious Democrat is said to have gone so far as to ask Tarbox this morning if he had ever known what it was to undergo the torments of the nether world, and [illegible] a wondering [illegible] to have warned the gentleman from Massachusetts that he might prepare to suffer such torment before sunset. [illegible] awaited the redoubtable [illegible] Hill of Georgia is reported to have [illegible] enjoyed the several recent contests which ended in Mr. Blaine furnishing him with quite a numerous company. But Tarbox was proof against advice and the result was that Tarbox was knocked out in a short [illegible] It is thought in some quarters that the [illegible] committee [illegible] because the committee intends it to be delayed until [illegible] who is nominated. A movement is on foot to have a recess of Congress for thirty days [illegible] partisan legislation to be [illegible] after the [illegible] section in the [illegible]

The World on Blaine.

New York, June [illegible].—The World's Washington special says the galleries were well filled to-day to hear what was expected to be a sharp contest in the House. When Tarbox rose a feeling of surprise ran through the galleries that a new member and one of so slight build should dare to brave the bully of the House. His opening, however, developed so much ability as a speaker that close attention was paid from the first to the last. Having no answer to make to Tarbox's speech, Blaine had recourse to his customary methods and gave another exhibition of the smartness by coaching his man Frye to make an [illegible] Tarbox [illegible] properly possess himself of the advantage [illegible] at Blaine's currency speech. This Tarbox [illegible] when upon Blaine thrust Frye aside and in [illegible] language, that he didn't believe Tarbox's statement, and [illegible] brilliant performance with the promulgation of the [illegible] anathema that he did not [illegible] to Tarbox. On this the firm of Blaine, Frye [illegible] & Co. are announcing, [illegible] with a [illegible] trash of trumpets, that Blaine has devoured Tarbox. [illegible] the Democratic side the only criticism of Tarbox's effort is that he did not go far enough, that while showing probable [illegible] loss and official malfeasance he didn't take Blaine's [illegible] letters and comment on them in the order of their dates, and that when Blaine made his last insulting remark Tarbox didn't show him up as he deserved. Blaine's evil [illegible] however for the past week has been to force the Democrats to martyr him, and his great grievance is that they will not do it. Blaine is nothing more or less than a bully. He bullied the southern members from the very first of the session. He now bullies the House. The Democratic House had it in its power to shut up Blaine under the rules, which of course he deserved. This would make the circumstances have made a martyr of him. The House allowed him to have great latitude, but it was after all only giving him sufficient rope. The country has had a great variety of presidential candidates, but since Aaron Burr it never had a bully until Blaine took up successfully that character. Every American citizen interested in the welfare of the country feels the utmost interest in the character and disposition of the candidate for the highest office in the land, and as Knott said on the floor of the House, if the American people can elect such a man for President then God help the American people!

THE TERRITORIES.

The Seattle Intelligencer is now issued as a daily and is a spicy, readable and newsy sheet.

Secretary Struve has kindly tendered the use of the Territorial flags to the managers of the Thurston county Centennial celebration.

I. P. Mikkelson, an old and well-known citizen of Silver City, Idaho, committed suicide by shooting himself through the brain on Sunday before last.

Mr. Gilbert Ward, one of the members of Mr. F. M. Reed's surveying party now in Chehalis county, had his ankle badly cut by an ax a few days ago.

Butler of the Arizona Miner says that Mat. Bledsoe is not dead. He was loading mules in Prescott recently and seemed to take great satisfaction in reading his obituaries.

On the night of May 23d a Chinaman was murdered in Lewiston. Several Chinamen have been arrested on suspicion, but as yet no evidence of weight has been produced.

The N. Y. Tribune says: "Washington Territory contributes the tallest wheat and oats in the Centennial building, and California shows some veritable prodigies of [illegible]—monstrosities of breathing bulbs and clubs."

The Salt Lake Tribune says: "The trains bound East over the Union Pacific are crowded with passengers from China, Japan, Australia, the Pacific islands, California and Oregon, all bound for the great show at Philadelphia."

Nearly all the streams in Utah Territory are on another high, and are spreading out over field and farm, greatly to the detriment of the farmers. The Jordan is overflowing its stormy banks and the grain and grass crops are threatened with destruction.

A letter from Puyallup to the Star says: Owing to the low figures that hops are selling for, some have invested in hundreds of plum trees, expecting in a few years to see them paying from $2 to $2.50 per tree, as they intend to turn their attention to drying them for the market.

In Jordan valley, Idaho, crops of every description are looking unusually promising. The yield of grain will be greater than it has been for many years, and the hay crop will also be large. Everywhere in the valley and vicinity the harvest prospect will come up to the most sanguine expectations of all interested.

The Idaho Avalanche says: Developments in the Poorman mine continue to be of a very promising character. At the point where operations are now being carried on the vein shows up well and the quality of the quartz is a surprise to all who inspect it. All the indications point to the existence of a rich ledge in the vicinity, and it is liable to be approached at any time.

Mr. Arnold Miller, of Chehalis county, was killed on Tuesday 6th inst. on Oyster Bay, W. T., being crushed to death by a rolling log. He was working at one of the camps, and was standing below a log which was liable to roll at any moment. His companions warned him of his danger, but he remarked that he was all right. When the log started to roll he was caught and crushed beneath its mighty weight. Before his companions could reach him his body was entirely lifeless.

A resident of the Puyallup valley gives a description of an unusual freak of nature in that district of country. A rich body of bottom land embracing several thousand acres, exists in a body elevated about five feet above the line of timber growth. The subsoil is clay, on which there is from eighteen inches to two feet of rich loam, exceedingly productive and easily cultivated. There are many prairies on the river bottom, but this is the only one yet discovered occupying an elevated plateau.

The Silver City Avalanche of June 3d says: The weather during a portion of the present week, would have done no discredit to January. On Tuesday a sort of an old fashioned snow storm prevailed. Two or three inches of snow fell, but the ground being moist, it was absorbed nearly as fast as it came down. There was a severe frost at night, and ice formed to the thickness of half an inch or more. This is the eighth month of winter with us and we are beginning to get a little discouraged.

The Olympia Echo says: At a little past eleven o'clock on the night of the 7th inst. two masked men (one tall and the other short) met Lem Whitaker and Russ Canby on the Swantown bridge, when one of them remarked, "I guess we'll go through you." "No you won't," replied Mr Whitaker, thinking a joke was being perpetrated. The masked men then ordered the two citizens to hold up their hands, which command was not complied with. One shot was fired and the powder from the pistol struck Mr Whitaker's hand. The latter, who had only five bits and a watch on his person, swore he would not hold up his hands, and he and his companion were allowed to pass on without further interruption.

Bank of California Assessment.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—The Bank of California levies an assessment of $10 per share, delinquent July 10th, day of sale, July 26th.

Fire in the Chinese Quarters—Smallpox.

About 3 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in a Chinese store, on the south side of Sacramento street, between Dupont and Stockton. The building is of brick, two stories high, the upper part being used for general Chinese occupation. The fire department succeeded in confining the flames to the two stores in the lower story, which were pretty thoroughly gutted. During the progress of the fire a Chinaman in the last stages of smallpox was hurriedly taken from the burning building and deposited on the sidewalk, where he lay, the police declining to touch him, until some of his countrymen carried him away. After the fire was extinguished, the bodies of two Chinamen were found in the store, who had been sleeping on top of the enclosure partitioned off in the rear of the stores. The bodies were removed to the morgue. Parties in the vicinity, both white and Chinese, report that a number of cases of smallpox exist among the Chinese in the alley at the corner where the burned building is located. The premises are insured for several thousand dollars; amount of loss not ascertained.

The McCabe Habeas Corpus Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—The case of the child Harry McCabe, who was recently taken from the charge of an attache of Montgomery Queen's circus on the ground that he was illegally withheld from the custody of his parents in New York, came up to-day in the 15th district court. The defense asked further time to obtain testimony, which was granted after a long argument. The case will come up for hearing July 24th.

Warrant for the Arrest of Gov. Stanford Issued.

Warrants were issued to-day for the arrest of Leland Stanford and E. H. Miller on complaint of J. R. Robinson, stockholder in C. P. R. R., on the ground that they refused to exhibit to him certain papers which were demanded at the examination of Miller, now in progress at the office of the company. The paper in question is understood to show the manner in which certain sums had been used here and in the East in forwarding the designs of the directors of the company. Bail is fixed in each case at $200.

Pacific Mail Agents Appointed.

Williams, Blanchard & Co. have been appointed agents of the Pacific Mail Company in place of A. P. Bacon, resigned, and to-day took possession of the office. It is understood that Waddell, superintendent of the dock, will be removed. This appointment is, of course, in consequence of the new deal in the affairs of the company in New York and the assumption of the control by the Panama interest.

Fifth Assessment on Bank of California Stock.

Fifth assessment of $10 per share on the stock of the Bank of California has been levied, to become delinquent on July 10th.

Smallpox.

A case of smallpox was discovered in the Chinese quarters to-day.

Barbecue at Livermore.

LIVERMORE, Cal., June 9.—Farmers here are about to hold a barbecue on Saturday next, June 17th, in honor of the recent land decision. A special train is expected from Stockton and Oakland.

Grain Freights Reduced.

The C. P. R. R. Co. have reduced the freight on grain to $2.25 per ton. The yield of grain will exceed that of any previous season. Harvesting will not begin until the latter part of the month. Large quantities have been shipped daily.

Sacramento Races.

SACRAMENTO, June 9.—There was a fair attendance at the park this afternoon. Weather splendid. Both races were extremely interesting. For the running race, best 3 in 5, for a purse of $400, Billy Newell, Lady Amanda, Turf Gallery, Bradley and Morphine were entered. Newell won the 4th heat; best time 1:4[illegible]. Amanda took the first heat. Turf Gallery was distanced on the 2d and Bradley on the 4th heat.

The next was a trotting race, 2 mile heats, 2 in 3, for a purse of $500. Gold Note, Jerome and Mary Lewis were entered. Jerome won the first heat; time 5 minutes. Gold Note was second horse. Collusion being suspected between the owners of Jerome and Gold Note another driver was demanded, but the protest being almost immediately withdrawn no change was made, and soon after the horses started on the second heat, it was discovered that one of Gold Notes' traces had been cut or broken and was slashing around his legs. He acted well however and came in good second. Jerome's time was 5:03, but the judges decided it no heat. Another driver for Gold Note was then insisted upon, and Jimmy Finnent won the 3d and 4th heats in good style—time 5:04½ and 5:11. He was loudly cheered by the crowd. The judges gave the race to Gold Note, but a protest has been entered in favor of Jerome.

BY STATE TELEGRAPH.

Fiery Firemen.

ALBANY, June 9.—There is considerable feeling manifested by our firemen at the action of the committee in Portland in fixing the regulations for steam fire engines, and a movement is now being made to get up a 4th of July celebration here at Albany and to refuse to participate with Portland. A public meeting will be called at the court house to-morrow evening to take into consideration the propriety of celebrating the 4th in an independent style. Citizens generally express a willingness to respond financially to the movement.

EUGENE ITEMS.

Under date of June 9th, our Eugene correspondent sends the following:

No less than ten traveling agents for wholesale houses in Portland and San Francisco are now in town, all registered at the St. Charles Hotel.

It is expected that the Farmers' Mercantile Association (the grangers) will open a store at this place, the stock having long since been subscribed.

Since election the town has seemed almost deserted; even our editors complain of the scarcity of items. Going strawberrying seems to be the order of the day. A party is going out this morning well supplied with cream and other delicacies, expecting to gather their own berries.

Eugene Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1 are going to have a Centennial at home: a procession, oration, dinner in the grove back of Skinner's Butte, fireworks and a ball in the evening; and they are the boys who know how to do these things. The committee appointed are gentlemen who have had experience in such things, and a good time may be expected.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

A correspondent, writing from the Dalles under date of the 8th inst., sends the following:

The Fifth Judicial District Teachers' Institute has made a happy beginning, and has been sustained thus far with unflagging interest. The Congregational church Wednesday evening was comfortably filled with an attentive audience. Mr Abbott, of the Tribune, made the opening address, but the strangers from abroad were not obliged to wait for an address to be made welcome. Mr Syl. C. Simpson, of your city, responded in a few graceful sentences. He said he was glad to pay a visit to this umbrageous and, just now, overflowed city, and referred to the fact of their being an unwelcome visitor to the institute, viz: the Columbia, who came without invitation. He thought the Dalles a pleasant place for defeated candidates for office.

The audience then listened to a poem entitled "In those Days," by Miss Robbins. We hardly knew which to admire most—the smooth flowing verse or rare elocutionary powers of the speaker, which made each word distinctly heard throughout the house. Your readers will have an opportunity of judging for themselves as to its merits, as I understand it is to be published.

Mr Rowland followed with a talk about institutes in general, his experience with them, their necessity,—the people's duty to sustain and lend a helping hand. Mr Rowland excels in talk and he generally says the right thing in the right place and time.

The following programme has been promptly carried out to-day: Mental arithmetic, S. P. Barrett. Class—in Addition, (primary), Mrs E. E. Reynolds. Elocution, Miss Robbins. Exercise in spelling, with discussion of methods. Committee of the whole on the "First days work of the young teachers in school."

It has been a characteristic of the Institute thus far that every one who had a place on the programme has been prepared, and the result has been that we have listened to a series of admirably prepared papers on the above mentioned topics. We are naturally proud of this our first bunch grass institute and only wish that more could be present from abroad to enjoy it, and aid us with their presence and influence.

OREGON.

Scio is making a move to celebrate the coming Fourth.

The annual campmeeting for the Brownsville circuit will be held on the Shedd camp ground near Roberts' bridge, Linn county, commencing on the 15th of June. The fourth quarterly meeting will be held in connection.

A survey of the proposed canal to bring the water of Long Tom to Corvallis has been made and it is estimated that it can be built at a very light cost in comparison to the advantages to be derived by the place from the introduction of water power with which to run machinery, manufactories etc.

The Corvallis Democrat says: "On last Wednesday as Col. Kelsay and W. B. McFadden, Esq., were going to Albany in a buggy, when about two miles this side of Albany one of the tugs became unhitched, and the horses ran off, throwing the occupants of the buggy to the ground, considerably jarring the colonel and knocking Mr. McFadden senseless, bruising and cutting him in a serious manner. The buggy was literally smashed to pieces."

The McMinnville Reporter says: "Crowds of men have been engaged every day since young Getchell was drowned, searching and dragging the river for his body, but all in vain. Yesterday being the 9th day since the body sank a few people were watching that locality with the expectation of seeing it rise to the surface. Should it not be entangled in the drift they may realize their anticipations. It is thought by many that the body lies not a great distance from where the wagon crossed the river at the time of the accident, as the last seen of young Getchell he was but a few feet directly in front of the horses, and it may be he was overtaken and run over by the team."

Lace is not only employed as flounces and trimmings but the upper dress is sometimes entirely composed of it.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 10, 1876.

A THEOSOPHIC FUNERAL.

The announcement was made some days ago by telegraph that the funeral of Baron De Palm, in New York, would be conducted according to the rites of the society of which the deceased was in his life-time a member. The last mail brings full accounts of this singular ceremonial.

The funeral ceremonies were conducted in the lodge room of the society, which is a large room, neatly furnished, capable of containing two thousand persons. A plain coffin containing the Baron's body, was on a rough table covered with black cloth.

"Seven candles, two colored red, two green, two white and one blue, stood unlighted upon it, marking the six points and the center of a double-triangle star. Beside them lay one of the Baron's patents of title with a sword across it and the seal depending. Two of his orders were also displayed against the black cloth face of the bier. At the head of the coffin the serpent circle was marked, and an hour-glass stood at the foot. To the left a few feet distant, was a reading desk, and to the right at the same distance a censer standing on a small dry goods box covered with the coarse black cloth."

A large and respectable congregation filled the room, and at the appointed hour a "respectable looking gentleman in ordinary dress came out on the platform and lit the seven colored candles with a sulphur match. The flames all burned yellow. Fire was next applied to the incense, which sent up a thick smoke and the smell of juniper. A plain deal tau or masculine cross, with its asp, was placed near the desk."

The president of the society, with seven other gentlemen, all wearing black gowns, then appeared and took seats on a platform. All carried evergreens. The President then addressed the congregation, stating what would be done, and requesting that the spectators would bear themselves as they would at an ordinary funeral.

Music which was described as being "par Presbyterian" followed, and a theurgic hymn, beginning

Boundless En Soph! Unknown Father! Pure
Lord of him whose heart is pure,
Thou who has made the seven heavens!
Thou whose glory in the highest shines!
We come, great Adonai! We come to thee,

Was sung. After this, the eight in black stepped forward towards the bier, and one of them offered a prayer to the "Spirit of Light and Wisdom." The organ then sounded, while the gentlemen ranged themselves around the coffin. After they had taken their places, the president read from a little book:

"The divine light and outshining of the Supreme Reason from the words of the Deity, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world, has not been altogether wanting to the devout of any creed. The permanent revelation, one and universal, is written in visible nature, is explained by reason and completed by the wise analogies of faith."

The following singular creed was then recited by several of the society:

"What we call death, is change. The Supreme Reason, being unchangeable, is therefore imperishable. Thoughts once uttered are immortal.

The President—In what condition is the invisible world?

Response—There is no moveable world: There are only different degrees of perfections in organs. The body is the gross representation, and is, as to change, the temporary envelope of the soul.

The President—By what process does the soul perceive?

Response—The soul can perceive by itself and without the intervention of bodily organs by means of its sensibility and lucidity the things, whether spiritual or corporeal, that exist in the universe.

The President—What is death? What do you call death?

Response—We call death, change. We die and are born again, for every day our forms change. There is no real death in nature. All is living.

President—What evidence does movement in death supply?

Response—That there is no death. Even the body, if dead, would not decompose. All the atoms that compose it retain life and move to free themselves.

President—How is the equilibrium of motion preserved?

Response—By antagonism, life and death, light and shadow, good and evil, spirit and matter; by these are the scales kept evenly balanced.

President—There is but one first cause—uncreated, eternal, infinite and unknown. The soul of man is immortal and his earthly life but a point in eternity. Harmony is in equilibrium, and equilibrium subsists by the analogies of contraries.

The President then made an address, in which he told the audience what theosophy is. Its aim, he said, was to study the history of ancient myths, symbols, religions and sciences, the psychological powers of man and his relations with the laws of nature. It made no pretense to teach anything, for it had everything to learn. Finding modern religion and science unsatisfactory, its members had concluded to go to primal relations for the truth. Its object is to acquire knowledge affecting theosophy. In the view of theology the fountain of revelation went dry when the last Ecumenical Council closed its sessions. In the view of theosophy the springs are perennial. The price of its illumination is the entire subjection of the baser passions. He also delivered a panegyric upon the deceased, praising him for his pure life and theosophic beliefs. A theurgic hymn was then sung; a female spiritualist spoke for some time; the audience was dismissed and the pagan funeral was over.

It may be added that the members of this society believe that they derive their knowledge of God and divine matters from direct inspiration; that death is merely a change, and that consequently the deceased Baron is still a member of their society, although the form he now wears is not known.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

One of the objects aimed at in giving place to "Notes and Queries" was, and is, to draw out all the information possible concerning the early history of the State and the adjoining Territories. There are many interesting facts and incidents known to those now living which will be lost to succeeding generations unless preserved in print. The origin of names of places; the places where early settlements were made; dates of memorable events and other facts connected with the early history of different localities are all important and valuable as materials for the use of future historians. Probably no one person can give all, or even a large part, of that which might be supplied; but if each one would contribute what he knows the mass of fact, incident and tradition would soon become very considerable. It may seem to some not worth while to put in print such facts, as the date of the erection of the first house, or of the birth of the first child in the State; or to ask the significance of the Indian names of our rivers and towns; but this is a mistake. Similar questions about places, rivers and events in the Eastern States are now being discussed there with the liveliest interest. We would like any one, who may see a query to which he can furnish the desired answer, to do so, as briefly and as pointedly as possible. The queries are intended to be addressed to the readers of this paper more than to any one else, and it is hoped that whoever feels himself possessed of the desired information will transmit it to us for publication.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

"What is the origin and meaning of the word Yamhill as applied to one of the rivers and counties of Oregon?"

Ans.—A short distance below the junction of the north and south forks of the Yamhill river is the falls of the Yamhill. Just above the falls a ledge of rock runs across the river upon which the Indians in their journeyings up and down the west side of the Wallamet, used to cross the stream. It was the only ford on the river, and therefore, like Oxford and other similar points, became a place of note. A short distance to the north and west of this ford, and in plain view, is a group of bald, picturesque red hills, the Indian name of which was Che am hill—the coincidence between the last syllable of the word and the English word for a small mountain being purely accidental. As usual the Indians, from this circumstance, called the locality and the ford Che am hill. The first immigrants soon corrupted the word into Yam Hill, and later ones reduced it to Yamhill, and extended the word to the whole river and the country drained by it. Che-am-hill simply meant bald, or bare hill or elevation.

DD.

Who was the distinguished English lawyer that some fifteen or twenty years ago, in a trial for murder received a confession of guilt from the accused, and still continued his defense with great ability? Where can a history of the case be found?

"Stopping." Is it proper to use this word to express the idea of living or sojourning in a place?

Ans. No. "Stopping" simply means cessation of motion. Its use is analogous to that of the Greek aorist. The idea conveyed is limited. Staying implies a continued state of rest, or being in one place.

"Nicely." Some people when asked how they are—answer "Nicely."

According to Worcester, "nice", means simple; silly, foolish; soft; tender, delicate, palatable; dainty, savory; delicious; luscious; &c. In which sense are we to suppose people use this word when they say they are "nicely?"

Ans. It is impossible to say. Such a use of the word is absurd.

The Albany firemen, angry on account of the action of the Centennial committee on fire engines, have resolved to get up a 4th of July celebration of their own, and to leave Portland out in the cold. This is pretty rough on Portland. We hope the Albanian firemen will reconsider the matter.

OBITUARY.

Jean Jacque Mathiot, who died near Butteville, May 23, 1876, was born at the village of Haute Chaux, Department Du Doubs, France, April 24, 1804. He received more than a common education for his time. On November 28, 1827, he married Miss Catherine Vengon. In 1828 he paid a visit to the French colony of Algeria, to found a home for his family, but the country not suiting him, he returned to France the same year. On March 15, 1830, he left France again for a tour of observation throughout the United States of America. He traveled as far as the State of Ohio, then a new country. Being satisfied with the country he returned to France, where he arrived in Nov., 1840. Having settled his business, on March 15, 1842, in company with his wife and four children, he left the land of his forefathers forever. In the new world he settled in Highland county, Ohio. In the fall of 1852, he broke camp again, this time for the Pacific coast. His family increased by this time to seven children. He arrived at Portland, Oregon, the latter part of February, 1853, having come by the way of Nicaragua. He settled near Butteville, (on the Butte) Marion county, where he engaged in grape raising, at which he has been remarkably successful. But the energetic old pioneer is now at rest, and although thousands of miles away from the green fields of his childhood friendly hands have gently laid him within the bosom of the land of his adoption. May sweet flowers grow peacefully over the tear-bedewed mound that marks the place of his last home here, until the morn of that great day when he shall be called up to live in perpetual youth.

FOR SALE,

690 Acres of Dairy Land,

On the North Bank of the Columbia River and on the East bank of Chinook River, near its mouth, just 4 miles above Fort Canby.

THIS PLACE IS ESPECIALLY ADAPTED FOR a Dairy, 450 acres of it being excellent grass land, producing sufficient grass to keep 100 cows, a portion being hilly where grass starts early in the spring, and when that gives out there is enough Tide land range (upon which the grass is always green), to keep the cattle fat. One year's crop of Hay will nearly pay for the place.

This place is offered at a sacrifice for cash, or time will be given on part of the purchase price.

SATURDAY MORNING JUNE 10, 1876.

CITY.

OREGON CITY WOOLEN MILLS.—These mills, which are owned by Jacobs Bros. & Co., are running on full time in order to supply the demands of the market. Eight sets of the latest and most improved machinery are kept constantly employed, and the number of operatives 110. Some idea may be formed of the extensive scale on which operations are carried, when the fact is known that about 500,000 pounds of wool are annually manufactured into cloths of various grades, and the yearly earnings of the mill are between $300,000 and $400,000. The different grades of cloth which have been turned out at these mills and shipped away have contributed in no small measure toward establishing and sustaining the well merited and high reputation gained abroad about the superiority of Oregon wool goods over those of Eastern and California manufacture. A number of splendid samples of cassimere goods and blankets are on exhibition at the Centennial exhibition at Philadelphia, which were manufactured at the Oregon City Woolen Mills, and they are winning golden opinions abroad about what this State can produce in the way of fabrics.

THE MISSING TRUNK.—A few days since we published a letter written by Mr. Huntington, from Neah Bay, respecting the finding of a copy of the Bible out at sea. In adverting to the letter, the Astorian says: "On the night of May 24th a trunk belonging to a lady of this city, Mrs. John Hobson, was left on the Oregon Steamship Company's slip, from the Ilwaco boat, and by some mistake was allowed to remain there until the tide, which was unusually high that night, washed it off the slip and it was carried away. All search for the missing trunk proved unavailing, and it was finally abandoned. No date is given to the letter published in the OREGONIAN, hence we are unable to state the time consumed on the voyage; but as the distance from Astoria to Neah Bay is nearly 200 miles, if the trunk made the entire distance, it has made better time than Jarrett & Palmer's fast train from New York across the continent. Mr. Hobson has sent for the book. The trunk contained woman's wearing apparel when it was lost, valued at about $75.

MEETING OF CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE.—A meeting was held Thursday evening by the Centennial executive committee, at which the following proceedings were had: The resignations of Joseph Buchtel and Robert Holman as judges of the fire engine tournament were read and tabled. A communication from P. Vickers in relation to hoisting a flag on the summit of Mount Hood, was read and placed on the table. An estimate was read from Messrs. Algeo and Braden for lumber, cost of erecting a stand, seats, etc. The estimate amounted to $751 70. The committee of the common council on ways and means was instructed to contract for the erection of seats, stand, etc., at as low a rate as possible. The following persons were appointed as an auditing committee: H. D. Sanborn, L. Besser, Chas. Hodge; on decoration: W. H. D. Joyce, Chas. Stiegert, L. G. Pfunder.

WILL PROBABLY NOT ENTER.—Says the Albany Democrat, of Friday morning: "In another place we publish the regulations adopted by the judges for the Portland Fire Engine Tournament, which are so far from being satisfactory to Linn Steam Engine Co. that it is rumored that unless they are modified, that company will not enter the contest. To make a fourth class engine compete with a second-class one with the same pressure of steam and only 50 feet less hose, is manifestly unfair. It shows that the Portland engines are afraid to meet our little giant without a large per cent. in their favor. Linn Engine Co. will probably have a called meeting and decide upon the matter in the course of a day or two."

STATE OF WATER.—Last evening the O. S. N. Co.'s line was prostrated beyond Celilo, and consequently no late intelligence could be obtained beyond that point. Earlier in the day, however, it was ascertained that the river at Wallula and Umatilla was at a stand, and at Celilo had risen two inches since Thursday morning. Since Thursday evening the river has risen four inches at the Cascades. The Lewiston boat, which had just arrived at Celilo, brought the welcome intelligence that the Snake river is falling rapidly. However, the Columbia river is reported to be slowly rising.

WEATHER REPORT.—From the records of the U. S. Signal Station of Observation, Portland, Oregon, June 9, 1876:

STARTS FOR VICTORIA.—Mr. Chas. M. Atkins, manager for the California Minstrels, will start this morning for Victoria, where he expects to join the troupe in a few days. The company expect to sail to-day from San Francisco for Victoria on the steamer City of Panama. They will arrive there in time to open a short season on the 15th inst.

LIBERAL ASSOCIATION.—The subject for discussion before the Liberal Association will be "Resolved, That the introduction and establishment of the Christian religion in the Roman Empire was the principal cause of the 'Dark Ages' in Europe."

DRAFT LOST.—The finder of a draft on New York City, amounting to $102, will please return it to Captain Cahalin, corner of First and Stark streets.

BRIEF NOTES.

The river has partially submerged a portion of Front at F street.

Two picnics to-day—one to Aurora and the other to Clackamas.

The Centennial committee on billiards will meet this evening at 8 P. M. at Peter Wilhelm's.

The cable of the old and condemned ferry boat which has been lying for some time on the east bank of the river floated away by the high water.

Carrie Bainbridge and Mollie Brown were arrested yesterday on a charge of using abusive language, and will have a hearing in police court this morning.

In our mention of the election of trustees for the Scandinavian Evangelical Lutheran Church yesterday, the name of John Nelson was inadvertently omitted.

To-day, the Astoria-Portland telegraph line was completed as far as Clifton. The line is being constructed at the rate of about one mile and a half in four days.

A Sunday school concert will be given by the North Portland Sunday School in their hall, corner of Ninth and D, on Sunday afternoon at 3 30, at which time Rev. Mr. Bentley will address the school.

The steamer Beaver which was recently sold by the W. T. & L. Co. to Mr. Nelson, to ply on the Stikine river between Wrangel and the head of navigation, left Astoria last Wednesday morning and arrived in safety at Victoria the following morning at 8 o'clock. The trip was a quick one for a small light craft like the Beaver.

PICNICS.

Yesterday forenoon the pupils, teachers and friends of the Methodist Sunday school of Vancouver came over on the Vancouver and were landed at East Portland. From the point of debarkation the excursionists proceeded to the park, where several hours were spent in the most agreeable manner. The excursionists numbered over a hundred persons, principally women and children. In the afternoon the steamer touched at the foot of J street, and, taking on board the picnickers, steamed away down the river.

To-day the East Portland, Mount Tabor, Hall street and Ames Chapel Methodist Sunday schools will join in a picnic excursion up the Wallamet and Clackamas rivers. It has been determined to have the excursion take place to-day as advertised, notwithstanding the threatening weather. The steamer has ample accommodations for picnicking, and should the weather be showery, the time will be occupied in cruising upon the vessel to Oregon City, Oswego, Milwaukie and other points of interest. Let none stay at home on account of the weather who desire a pleasant excursion.

BISHOP SCOTT GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

EXAMINATION AND CLOSING EXERCISES.

The sixth annual examination at this well known school occupied from Monday to noon of Friday of this week. Seventeen classes were examined—the examinations occupying from an hour and a half to two hours each. The subjects were Geography, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Physics, Geometry, Trigonometry, Ancient Geography, English History, Greek History, Latin, Greek, Physiology and Rhetoric.

Mr. Grant's two primary classes in geography did uniformly well, as also his class in arithmetic. In Mr. Wrix's class in geography, N. and W. Hayden and Blackwood distinguished themselves. His class in Latin and Greek—Morris and Wilson—were reported good. Mr. Burton's class in English Grammar—Flanders, Abney, Glisan, Wright, Goldsmith, Burnside, King, Smith and Gantenbein—showed training and study, and gave good assurance of the Oregon syntax of the future. In Greek History Paul Deady, Ridgely and John Lewis were very much at home and might have passed for youthful Hellenes. Ridgely, Wilson and Morris showed proficiency in Physics. In Geometry Deady and Odeneal did well, and in Trigonometry Ridgely did very well. In Physiology, Ridgely, Deady, Lewis (John), Morris and Wilson showed an intimate acquaintance with the parts, structure and functions of "The breathing house not built with hands"—the human body. In Mr. Burton's Latin class, W. Covilland and Allen Lewis did very well, particularly the latter. In English History, Odeneal, Hoyt, Covilland and Lewis (Allen) were good. These same boys, together with Paul Deady distinguished themselves in Ancient Geography, and evinced much familiarity with the divisions and noted places of the old world and the events which transpired there and have preserved their identity. The class in Rhetoric—Ridgely, Odeneal, Deady, Covilland and Lewis (John), was among the most interesting. The examination took in the whole subject of the art of prose composition. The class did well generally, but Howard Ridgely excelled. Some of this class had also prepared compositions which were not read for want of time. We were favored with a casual inspection of Paul Deady's. The subject is Athens—and if they are all as good as his they deserved to have been read.

We cannot forbear to speak of the thoroughness of these examinations, including the sufficient time given to each class. The Headmaster, who conducted those not specially credited to others, is an admirable oral instructor. This is a great advantage to a class upon all occasions, except final examinations. At such times we kindly suggest that the class should do the talking. Let a boy tell his story as best he can without material aid or hindrance, and when he is through, if he has erred from ignorance or inadvertence let him be subjected to cross examination until his error is corrected or confirmed. Verbum sat sapienti.

On Friday at 1 o'clock the scholars and a large number of the friends and patrons of the school assembled in the Chapel to hear the Headmaster's Report and witness the distribution of the prizes. After a short religious service the Report, which we publish below, was read and received with marked attention. It is not altogether rose-colored nor replete with saccharine matter. But we hope it will be read by the boyhood of the country, and the manhood as well. We are glad to see that the school is self supporting, albeit it is somewhat at the expense of the Headmaster's salary. At the close of the Report, the Rector—Bishop Morris—presented prizes to the scholars as follows: James Goldsmith and Clarence Glisan for uniform politeness to the Headmaster; Couch Flanders, first prize in primary room for attendance, conduct and studies; Henry Abney, second prize, ditto; William Hayden, a boarder, for perfect conduct; Allen Lewis, for attendance, conduct and scholarship; Howard Ridgely, a boarder, for scholarship. These prizes were all elegant or valuable books, except the last which was $30 in money.

After the delivery of the prizes, the Bishop made a few remarks to the recipients—telling them that these prizes were the fruits of the good seed sown by them during the year, and forcibly reminded them that so it would be through life—as they sowed so would they reap—closing with the beautiful admonition of the Psalmist—"Keep innocency and take heed to the thing which is right, for that will bring a man peace at the last."

HEADMASTER'S REPORT.

Rt. Rev. Bishop, Patrons and Friends of the School:—The year of our school work draws again to its close. It has been as the other years one of mingled encouragement and discouragement. First, sickness which heretofore had spared us, has laid heavily on us this time. For upwards of twenty weeks we scarcely knew what it was to be all well. Sometimes three at once were down. I have been without undressing a week at a time. The epidemic mumps, broken limbs and typho malarial fever have been our unwelcome guests. The last disease was brought to us from outside this place, and is in no way attributable to our location—whose healthfulness is a fact established by long years of unusually good health among our boys. Of the other sources of discouragement I shall say no more now. They will appear indirectly when I come to speak of discipline and moral training, subjects to which I wish to devote some time. I say less of our troubles for this reason also—that a good deal of them grew out of our own sad misfortune in incompetent and unfaithful teachers.

We have had, during the year, sixty-three pupils. Of these, twenty-four have been boarders for the whole or a part of the session. Three of these last mentioned came to us from California. All the others are of our own State. The income from these boys has been sufficient to pay the expenses of carrying on the school, and we have not incurred one cent of indebtedness. What close economy and care this has required must appear from the many statements made by larger schools, showing their unavoidable running behind. I hope the headmaster will not appear at all in the character of him who sounded the trumpet before him, nor even be considered egotistical, if he says that this is simply owing to the fact that this school work is to him a labor of love, that he is willing to receive as salary whatever is left after paying all expenses.

These sixty-three boys have been engaged in the usual routine of our school work. While we still modestly adhere to the time honored name of Grammar school, I think it will be found that as heretofore we have been doing a higher grade of work than is done in some so called universities. That we undertake a higher grade of work is shown by the text books we use. That we accomplish our undertaking I hope has been made to appear in the examination of the school which has just ended. To me, this examination has been a great satisfaction and encouragement. In spite of many drawbacks, it has been the best we have ever had. The school is far ahead of the standing it had before. Boys are doing work at ages two or three years earlier than their elder brothers did the same. They show more grasp and a better understanding of subjects. They can analyze and explain much better. Here I, as well as the parents, owe much to the patient perseverance of the men who assist me in this work.

Of the master of the Primary room I cannot speak too warmly; so cheerfully has he borne the burdens of double duty, so painstaking and patient has he been in all the very hardest, as well as the most important work of the school—the work for the smaller boys. In all the classes in our school there appears the advantage of a thoughtful, intelligent, logical, methodical system of training.

Our studies this year have reached in mathematics through conic sections and trigonometry with its application in surveying and navigation, in natural science, through Cutter's Physiology and Silliman's Physics, in history, Markham's England and Dr. Smith's Greece; in classics, Virgil, Cicero and Horace in Latin, and Homer and [illegible] in Greek. [illegible] the limit of our work.

Toward a critical theoretic knowledge and practical use of the English language we try to make everything contribute. But here the results are least apparent, the work is slowest. The ripe fruit of every tree is long in coming. Still every boy here has done a good deal towards understanding the correct orthography, etymology, syntax and history of [illegible] mother tongue. Grammars [illegible] and rhetorics are things [illegible]. That I consider an [illegible] think that no education [illegible] which neglects or lights [illegible].

Whatever we have done we have tried to do thoroughly. There has been no [illegible] hurrying. Every subject has been reviewed and re-reviewed until its [illegible] and its principles not only [illegible] familiar to the hand. [illegible] the rules for the practical working of the school.

We would prefer that a boy should know arithmetic thoroughly than that he should have a smattering of half a dozen sciences with long Latin and Greek names. Perhaps the hardest task we meet with is that of teaching a boy how to learn. Many boys and alas! not a few grown people, think the schoolmaster ought to learn for the pupil. As if a gardener could do the growing for the plants. The most popular teacher with boys I fear with some parents is the one who does the most of the boy's work. Now the teacher should do no work for the boy. It is much more easy for him to do it than to make the boy do it. Hence we find boys for whom it has been done. Hence when they find a little difficulty instead of grappling with and solving it they expect the teacher to do that. Such boys have not one particle of power in analysis or comprehension, nor do they acquire any. When therefore we can teach a boy to think, to criticize, to analyze, to apply what he already knows, most of our work is done. Of course the teacher may be helpful. He may point out important facts, he may explain abstruse and hard principles, he may show the connection of fact with fact—the application of laws and principles. He may recall something forgotten. But he must teach his pupils to work to effect, to try and apply what they know. First principles, fundamental laws, the facts that underlie every science let these be carefully learned, clearly understood, at the fingers ends as the trite adage has it. Then the pupil may and will make rapid and safe progress. But very little of this can be done in a year, or indeed in two years. Put a boy in school at fourteen and he will make more progress the third year than in the two preceding. This brings me to a very important matter, the time of life to begin a boy's mental training. It seems strange to me that we should mistake in this, nature has made the way so plain. The very period when our life is useless for every other purpose is the most precious for training. Do not begin too soon. A boy who knows his letters at five, reads well at seven, can write a legible hand, spell the words in common use, say his "tables," cypher through the four primary rules in arithmetic at ten, such a boy knows enough. And now comes the time for real work. The next six years are worth all the rest. If these are thrown away or lost, the work of education undertaken in later years is always a hard one, and very seldom a thorough one. A boy will learn more in four years from thirteen to seventeen, than in any six after that period, and the later he begins the higher the ratio against him. Remember, moreover, a bad school and a bad system are rather worse than entire neglect. In the one case the faculties have to be awakened, in the other a wrong direction has to be corrected. Give us boys and we can make scholars of them. Let them grow up to be men in ignorance and they are likely to remain dunces in spite of schools and masters, books and exercises. So one step leads to another. We ask for boys. You remember the story of the grim Cynic at Athens, who went out at noonday with a lamp to look for a man. His search were vainer if amongst us its object were a boy. Alas! that this is so. In my mind, there is nothing so loveable as a boy. I love bright, good little girls very dearly, most dearly of all things except one, a boy, a real boy here—a boy with an open brow and sunny smile, a ringing laugh and a clear, fearless eye, that looks straight into yours, and lets you look all through his honest heart; yes, I love him best. He loves a kite, or hoop, or ball. He is full of life and artless glee. He plays hard and studies hard. He is always respectful. Always docile. Always true and pure. If he commits any wrong, he is always ready to say "Yes, sir, I did it." His tongue is truthful. His soul is void of guile. And there are such boys. There used to be more of them when the Bishop, and the Rector, and the Headmaster were boys. And since then, too there are memories of many graven deep in my heart, where time and care do not erase them. But I know some such still. I meet them daily, on the street, in their homes, when many cares allow me the pleasure of going there. There are a good many of them after all. When I banish the horrid, bad ones out of my mind and think of them they multiply. The same frank look. They are not afraid of me. They know there is nothing to be afraid of. They have done no harm. They have not spoken ill of me behind my back which they dare not speak to my face. They know I am their friend. I think they think I really love them. They know the amenities of life, they touch their caps to me. When a boy does that, I always say that is a very fortunate boy, his mother is a lady. They have a good morning for me that almost makes our gloomy winters bright. They are a great pleasure and comfort to me. I cannot tell them who they are, nor how much I think of them, and how dearly I love them, for that would spoil them—make them conceited, "too big for their clothes," I believe they call it, the very worst thing that could happen to a boy. But though I do not speak out their names, I do think highly of them and love them deeply. Indeed, in these days of rough and disrespectful boys, I beg leave here publicly to thank all such boys for being gentlemen.

Perhaps some of my hearers may think this an ideal sketch. If so, I think their experience has been of very bad boys. However here is—not exactly a companion picture excepting on the principle of contrast—but a sketch which I know to be real. Alas! too real. It is too common to be even picturesque. I wish to draw a thing which ought to be a boy. By the phenomena he is one, size, shape, organs—every appearance is that of a boy. But he is not a boy, he does not think himself one. Call him one and his resentment will show how much better he thinks he is. I should be sorry to say how much worse he appears to me.

If you could change every color and outline in the former picture, you would have this other. Instead of respectful, write impudent, for simplicity, put duplicity, for frankness, cunning, for studious, write indolent, for purity, put smut; and replace truth with falsehood and you have the main outlines and principal colors of your picture. A very little embellishment will make it complete, for this animal has embellishments and even accomplishments. He is not all behind that which he looks like. He mistakes his impudence for independence and his vice for manliness. That is the notable thing about him. He mistakes every fact and principle of life and being. So he apes all the manly virtues of his elders, as he thinks—a bitter satire on us which I hope is not deserved.

This thing abhors study and play, for so do men. Hat on one side and hands in pockets he affects street corners, for men do so. He cannot say the multiplication table, boys do that sort of thing, but he can smoke and chew "just like a man." "The game of authors" his sisters amuse themselves with that. He "likes real cards" and to play "for stakes," draw poker, like a great minister who swindles also in wildcat mining stocks. That is his hero whom he worships. He can hardly read, but there is one thing he can do—do to perfection. Had he only lived early enough he could have taught Shakespeare. Had he been born, one at least, yes, two—of the great character painter's ideal had been improved. The Welsh captain had known how to blaspheme more terribly and Falstaff had spoken filth with a fouler tongue.

But enough of this—indeed too much. Old fashioned people like myself who love boys and hate this "thing of the period," are sick of it.

What has this to do with the Grammar School? This much. The foundation principle, the corner stone of the institution is to exclude all such youths. It is sometimes thought we ought to take them and reform them. "By kindness," says one friend, "by thrashing them," says another, "by coaxing and petting," as I manage [illegible] his mother. I gave it up. In my [illegible] I never did think myself qualified to keep a reform school.

of the transgressor is hard," and year by year as there is less excuse for transgression, we shall try to make the way it leads in harder. Some sort of a sword we must bear, or our authority would be set at naught; nor do we purpose "to bear the sword in vain."

We are as wise as our neighbors, and know full well how we might cause ourselves to be borne on the shoulders of the mob. We are not so dull as not to have discovered how other men render themselves popular at the expense of duty and principle. We simply choose not to be so. We prefer being disliked by the evil-minded, old and young. Nor do we care to have our fame depend on the idle breath of the most foolish. If there is any selfishness in our hearts it is of a refined sort, it is truly Epicurean. We prefer aiming to secure the respect of these boys when they pass from the narrow, foolish views incident to their condition of life, to the sober afterthought of their mature years. Our efforts are for them, not for ourselves, therefore we cannot afford to be too agreeable to them.

As we have said before the Grammar school seeks to make of itself a Christian home, and this it cannot be if its doors are opened to every applicant. When we find a boy whose tongue is black with deceit, whose mind is full of the lowest cunning, whose words of us behind our backs are disrespectful and false, a boy to whom mind cards, saloons, and other, but unmentionable, places and practices are all familiar, we are obliged in self defence, to turn him out.

There is one thing more to which I would like to devote a few moments. Another year we must give more time and a more serious effort to religious instruction. We must also make a greater effort to grade the school better. The register will show the course of study, and we shall have to require all boys up through the third form to take all these studies in course. We beg our friends and parents to make themselves familiar with our methods and requirements before putting a boy in school, and to remember one thing, that we do require what we say we require, and therefore it will be better not to trouble us with requests to do something we have said we would not do.

Excepting a good bye and a wish for the welfare of you all, I have nothing further to add.

The Supply Depot of the Body.

The stomach is the grand supply depot of the body, upon which it draws for all the elements needed in the composition of bone, muscle, brain and blood. The liver is an important auxiliary of this mighty organ and the two are most intimately connected. Nothing so certainly ensures the harmonious action of these viscera, and so completely removes the disorders which simultaneously affect both, as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most popular American specific for all complaints to which the stomach, liver and bowels are subject, and the foremost tonic on this side of the Atlantic. Indigestion, costiveness, inactivity and congestion of the liver, poverty of the blood, disorders of the bladder and kidneys, and many other ailments produced by or causing weakness, are entirely removed by its use.

THE TURF.

TO-DAY'S RACES.—This afternoon the trotting races announced will come off at the East Portland trotting park. The race will be three-fourth mile heats, three in five, in harness, purse $200. To first, $150; to second, $50. The following entries are made: J. J. Welch, blk m Mollie Welch, by Pauline Jones; Late Lindsey, b g Parrot, by Vermont; Geo. Coggan, s g Mystery, by Old Mystery. Unfortunately for the want of a record we are unable to give the names or pedigrees of the dams of these Oregon raised steppers. As the race which is to come off to-day is but the forerunner of that which is to take place Centennial week, for the very generous purses hung by the Centennial committee, it will not be deemed out of place to notice the horses entered in this race and those who are to "guide" and "ply the silk" to the contestants, for, no doubt, "victory" is inscribed on each driver's card. "Blood will tell," and the horse fanciers have but to enquire, and they will find in the very names of Paul Jones, Vermont and Old Mystery, sufficient good blood to warrant a warm and dying race between their offspring to-day, which we understand will be witnessed by a great many admirers of the turf. The drivers J. J. Welch, Late Lindsey and William Tenant, are well-known gentlemen, who have for many years made the turf a specialty. It is difficult to rank these three drivers, for they are well matched, and may be depended upon as No. 1 jockeys, who can will a horse to do his work all the time, or just when they want the horse to make a "brush," or "burst of speed." The track is in a splendid condition and is pronounced second to none in Oregon. The experience of the proprietors is well known, and they are fully aware that "fair play" is expected—that success shall attend the coming Centennial races. The horses will start at 2:30 sharp.

SPECIAL CHURCH NOTICES.

Rev. Dr. Craig, of Astoria, will preach at the First Congregational church to-morrow—morning and evening.

Rev. Mr. Utter, of Olympia, will preach Sunday morning and evening at the Unitarian Chapel. Sunday School at 12:30.

Taylor Street Methodist Episcopal Church, corner of Taylor and Third streets, Rev. R. Bentley, pastor. Services at 11 A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sunday school at 1:45 P. M. Laymen's meeting at 6½ P. M. Strangers are cordially invited.

NEW BOOKS.

The following new books have just been added to the Portland Library:

The Movements and Habits of Climbing Plants, by Charles Darwin, M. A., F. R. S.

The Land of the Sky, or Adventures in Mountain By-ways, by Christian Reid.

The White Chief, a legend of North Mexico, by Capt. Mayne Reid.

When a breeze is blowing about the coattails of pedestrians, it is rarely a man has nerve to preserve an unconcerned air, under the consciousness that a new half sole has been put on the seat of his pantaloons. If he dealt with Fishel & Roberts half soling would be unnecessary.

Rhode Island sends to the Centennial a policeman who measures 6 feet 3 inches. That comes from living in a small State. Not having room to spread, he ran up. Run on to Beck & Waldman, and look at their new stock of imported clothing.

Invest a trifle in a good lunch, which you can get at Barnes'.

If you have no spare cash to invest in tickets to the Philadelphia Centennial stay at home and enjoy your own. You can see big sights and buy clothing equally as cheap at Kohn's Emporium, First and Morrison streets. He keeps his stock full and of the best.

For a quiet game of billiards or pool drop in at Peter Wilhelm's Fountain saloon. He keeps things in a cozy shape and will treat you in an affable manner. The Virginius pool table at his place is quite popular. Try it, as well as his imported wines, cigars, etc.

CORNS AND BUNIONS.

Dr. Halbrunner treats corns, bunions, ingrowing nails, etc., at your residence or hotel. He can be advised through the postoffice, or seen at his office and residence, corner Eighth and Market streets.

DR. McBRIDE.—What the editor of the Stockton Independent says of Dr. McBride and his World's Relief: "This skillful practitioner, and very popular gentleman, has spent the week in this city introducing a medicine which possesses wonderful potency in curing pain. It is called 'World's Relief,' and is properly named, for in every case of physical suffering which has come under Dr. McBride's observation and treatment, relief is almost instantaneous. The close, searching, keen discrimination requisite in distinguishing and determining the nature and character of the disease and their symptoms is an indispensable characteristic of the first-class physician, and to Dr. McBride's wonderful diagnostic ability is in the main to be attributed his miraculous success in curing pains, no matter from what cause arising. Such men are benefactors to their race." Dr. McBride may be found at Rooms No. 6 and 7, Cosmopolitan Hotel. He will remain in the city thirty days.

RETURNED.

Dr. Wightman has again returned to this city, where he can be found at his rooms, northeast corner of Stark and Fourth streets. Remember he makes a specialty of HEMORRHOIDS or PILES and other DISEASES OF THE RECTUM, giving IMMEDIATE RELIEF AND CURING in a very short time, without interfering with the business of the patient. I use no knife, caustic, ligature or any other painful remedies, having treated many cases of twenty and thirty years' standing with entire satisfaction to the parties treated, I have no hesitation in saying SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. Persons at a distance may consult by mail. The "process" sent by express C. O. D. (not by mail). Consultation fee, $2. Postoffice box, 217, Portland, Oregon.

DR. C. F. WIGHTMAN.

W. L. ADAMS, M. D., A. M., LL. D., corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price, by medicated, electric lightning cream baths, and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice, mixed with a little common sense. His treatment is, in the main, entirely original, and works almost miracles, as its numerous patients will attest. A lady always in the office to assist in treating women.

Mr. A. M. Elam, the successor of Elam & Co., engaged in the livery business, corner of I and Fifth streets, East Portland, has completely refitted and refurnished his establishment, and is now prepared to turn out some very stylish rigs. Feed of all kinds constantly on hand.

VALUABLE LANDS FOR SALE!

600,000 Acres in

EASTERN OREGON!

For Farming and Grazing Purposes.

THESE LANDS ARE SITUATED IN WASCO, Grant and Baker counties, and are offered for sale in such sized tracts, not less than 160 acres, as purchasers may desire. Here is afforded a most favorable opportunity to immigrants and settlers seeking homes and low priced land to acquire both at the most reasonable terms. These lands are excellent for farming and grazing. On most of the tracts no grubbing, or other preparation of the land for plowing is requisite. A growth of nutricious grass covers the uplands, affording the best of pasturage, while in the valleys and bottom lands the grass can be mowed and made into hay. Living springs and streams water the lands in various directions. The uplands, or rolling lands, can be put into crops with the most satisfactory return. Fruit, particularly apples, plums, grapes, apples, pears and cherries, as well as the smaller fruits, can be grown in great abundance. The climate of Eastern Oregon is very healthful. Flourishing towns are located at convenient points for traffic; the mails are regularly conveyed throughout that section, and a prosperous population is already established, occupied in farming, stock growing, mining, and various other pursuits. Terms, $1 25 per acre and upwards according to quality and quantity. Interest ten per cent on deferred payments.

For further information apply in person, or by letter to GEO. H. CURRY, Agent, Cree's Building, Stark st., bet. Front & First.

LAND FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Choice Farms for Sale.

4,000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS.

230 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING the Railroad Depot at Salem, all under cultivation and suitable for grain or vegetables.

946 Acres, four miles southeast of Salem on the railroad, with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county with fine springs consisting in part of the old Rector donation claim on which I raised the past year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety four bushels per acre, grain weighed and ground chained by Mr. Alfred Stanton of Salem.

2,700 Acres of prairie and light brush land with timber for farming purposes, bordered by the Willamette River for four miles, beautiful lake on the east. Lost Lingings [illegible] along the river commencing four miles north of Salem. All choice grain land, the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette Valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $15 to [illegible] per acre. [illegible] will be more [illegible] surveyed and can be sold in larger or smaller parcels to suit purchasers. [illegible] the best possible advantage, and [illegible] any person or persons or colony of persons desiring to buy lands in the best part of the Willamette Valley near the city of Salem and within reach of the best social advantages as well as most favorably located with respect to markets, greater advantages on more favorable terms than they can ever expect to realize again. THOMAS CROSS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the District of Oregon. This is to give notice that the undersigned was on the 1st day of June, 1876, duly chosen assignee of the estate of A. W. Sturgis, who was adjudged a bankrupt upon the petition of his creditors.

HOME COMING.

When [illegible] love the old hearthstone

Close folded under churchyard mould
Of eyes that smiled into our own
Closed in the dreamless sleep of God
A sweeter rest was never known
Than theirs beneath the grave's white sod,
A tender thought for them to night,
A tribute tear from [illegible]
Beneath their evening [illegible] white
Sweet may their dreamless slumber be

AN IDYL OF THE MOSELLE

It was evening in the ancient town of Trier the Angelus was ringing down from the great [illegible] like Dom the little stalls and carts had vanished out of the market place and the carved saints clustered on the fountain smiled benignly at the setting sun Old women in strange head dresses beads and books in hand passed in and out of St Gondolphus curious gates young girls, with long fair plaited hair moved in groups across the open space brilliant uniforms shone up on the balconies of the Roth Haus the shopkeepers in the queer little peaked houses stood at their doors and amused themselves while the awful black arches of the Porta Nigra frowned more grimly than ever in the glowing light and the gay and quaint little frescoes at the street corners seemed to blaze out with new color at its touch One particularly high peaked roof was suddenly covered with a flock of white pigeons alighting to rest and at the same moment a face appeared at a little open window among the birds, looked up and down the streets, and was withdrawn again

The face belonged to a young girl and the room into which she withdrew was pleasant and neat if a little bare A work table at the window showed that it was the home of a seamstress, a little shrine hung in a corner, with a tiny lamp burning a few rude pictures decorated the walls The girl was clothed in a holiday dress of dark green stuff, with white sleeves and apron and wore a scarlet flower in her breast. She had a soft sweet innocent face, and her fair hair hung behind in two long golden braids from her neck to her knees

As she turned from the window, a curly haired boy burst into the room

"Kreszenz I met Karl, and he told me to tell you he could not see you to night He is suddenly sent on business."

A look of disappointment clouded the girl's face but after a few moments of silence she said

"How good it is that they find him so useful, But come, Max you shall not be disappointed of your excursion You and I will go out for a walk and I will take you for a peep at our cottage"

Max snatched his hat, which he had flung off in disgust and locking the door behind them, the sister and brother descended many stairs, and took their way through the streets and out by the Porta Nigra into the country

"Look here Max did you ever see anything so gloriously blue as the Moselle this evening? Could you bear to live away from it? How glad I am that our new home will be near it And look how magnificent the red lights are upon the vine covered banks with the crimson earth growing between—How the tall dark poplars and the golden acacias seem to thrill as they bask in this wonderful light If I had been a man Max, I should certainly have tried to be an artist. Karl laughs at me when I say so, he does not care for such things and gets annoyed when I talk to him about them and yet I never saw half the beauty of things until he loved me"

How many people are out walking to night, Kreszenz! Oh there is that Kretchen kissing her hands to me, and I will not look at her Why? Because she was so impertinent this morning, telling me that Karl had left off loving you, and was going to marry Louise"

"It was a silly joke, Max I hope you did not get angry What did you say?

"Something that ought to have stopped her kissing her hands to me" said Max

It was too foolish to be angry about little brother Some one said it to me the other day and I only laughed I knew so well it was because I sent Karl a message to Louise the other evening But Gretchen ought to have said it to you, Max When I get to my new home I don't think I shall ask her to come to see me I do not want to hate anybody and —

I will do the hating for you Kreszenz and I hate every one who says Karl does not love you

Every one? Don't give such a big name to two people, Max, If Karl did not love me should he not be the first to know of it? Ah do you see our little house peeping above the acacias up in the fields over there? How delightful it will be to live there Max with all the flowers growing in at one's window And Karl is providing this home for me Ah little Max this looks rather like loving one doesn't it?"

Max was silent and kept his face turned away with a slight frown on the brows

"I wish I could suddenly grow big Kreszenz" he said abruptly

The sister laughed "My dear you must wait' she said By and bye you shall copy your brother Karl, and if you can manage to grow like him you will do very well In the meantime you are not quite so small as you were, my boy when I first took you in my arms and carried you about our poor garret trying to put you to sleep Mother had died the day before I was ten years old and you were only born I was a very little nurse wasn't I? But it seemed to me that I was a hundred years old How proud I was of you, and how I loved you

'And you worked for me didn't you Kreszenz?

'Ah didn't I? We were alone in the world you and me I paid a poor old woman—a very, very old woman who could not do any thing else—a penny a day for taking care of you and I worked for us two I was a strong little girl and as industrious as a bee People gave me work to do it was very hard until I was about fourteen and then I learned to sew and things began to be better At sixteen I was able to rent a little room for myself and so bring home my little brother Ah, Max how often have we been hungry together and yet you are a brave boy for your age I have pulled you through the worst and now God has taken us both into happiness and safety

No more scanty crusts for you No more sitting up all night sewing by candle for me No more pinching at the heart when rent day is coming round Who could have thought of it—that Karl whom every one admired should have sought out me I did not accept him hastily Max for I was afraid he had not known what he was saying or that he did not know perfectly how much people thought of him But he would persist in loving me he would indeed and that is why I laugh so much when the people tell idle tales If you only knew my good people I think If you only knew how well I know And Max—you see I do not mind saying anything to you—must confess that the greatest trouble I have had lately has been the fear that so much sitting up at night was taking away my good looks I look so sickly sometimes when the morning light comes in Stare me well in the face Max and tell me if I am getting ugly

'You are the prettiest and the loveliest girl in the town sister Kreszenz

But I am not rosy like Gretchen nor are my eyes so big and bright as Louise's nor

No matter persisted Max Not one of them can smile the way you do

After that I must say something nice to you Max Sit down here on the grass and let me tell you the kind of a life we shall have [illegible] little house yonder We shall have [illegible] of our own and there are vines growing round all the windows We shall have a pretty garden with trees and flowers and a field with a cow in it I shall [illegible] down on the Moselle You will go to work with Karl and [illegible] will have supper in the garden

[illegible] Kreszenz

[illegible] and I think it is time to go and look for some [illegible]

The sister and brother turned their steps toward a pleasant [illegible] house [illegible] trees up on the high overhanging bank of the river where the people of Trier love to drink [illegible] of the evening As the girl and child took their simple meal [illegible] the [illegible] race the blue Moselle rushed under their feet and Trier lay bathed in ruddy glow in the distance before their eyes with its strangely contrasting outlines softened into magnificent harmony and the fierce black Roman gates making a frown on the very front of the sunny landscape

How splendid it looks [illegible] cried Kreszenz Do you know Max I can not understand why people ever leave their homes to go out into the world

I should like to go out and see the world! said Max

You must not say so Max Nothing would ever induce me to leave Trier

They were rambling along the trees on the hillside stopping now and then to lean forward and take a fresh peep at the beauty of the river and the exquisite gleams of the distance on either side

Oh Kreszenz Kreszenz I have found a pair of lovers

Oh! Have you Max said Kreszenz with interest

Behind that large tree in such a pretty nook Just peep around and you can see

Hide then while I peep so carefully

Max retired while Kreszenz leaned forward with a smile of mischievous delight and peered from behind a screen of leaves herself unseen by the objects of her interest—When the boy thought he had waited long enough he came forth again and plucked her by the skirt

She turned to him slowly and put her finger on her lip

Kreszenz! Kreszenz whispered the child what makes your face so dreadful? Are they ghosts

Hush Max! I cannot see take me by the hand and get me into some quiet place, where nobody will find us

Oh Kreszenz you are ill! Are you going to die

"No dear I shall not die Fetch me some water and tell nobody

Max obeyed and while the red light paled on the Moselle and purple mingled with the crimson and olive of its banks the girl's white face lay on the moss gazing blankly upward with fixed eyes The tears trickled over Max's innocent cheeks as he nestled at her side and kissed her lips, her hands and her hair

Oh, Kreszenz may I not call some one to come and help you home?

No dear no said the young girl starting up "We are not going home any more We are going away somewhere else you and I together"

'What away from Trier

'Yes, I am tired of Trier

I thought you said you would never leave Trier and what will Karl say to you?

Oh Max! oh, Max!

Where shall we sleep to night if we keep walking on at this rate?

We shall rest on the road, and to-morrow we shall travel further There are other towns besides Trier, where [illegible] people can get work to do

"Oh Kreszenz! I am afraid you have gone mad Those people behind the trees must have been the wicked spirits we read about and they have harmed you

'Do you know who they were Max?—Karl and Louise Gretchen was right after all

But they did not say they were going to be married' said the boy Oh don't groan Kreszenz and I will try and not ask so many questions

Dear Max there is nothing more for me at Trier That is why we are going together out into the world"

Oh, that I could grow big, and go back and kill him

'Hush! you must not talk such nonsense You must take care of me now, as I have nobody else

'That I will indeed but oh Kreszenz my canary

Somebody will take care of it, my dear—We can get another

'And your pretty little shrine

'Somebody else will kneel at it I can pray to God anywhere you know

Deepening shadows dropped on the Moselle and the two young figures hurried on through the purple twilight away from Trier

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Financial.

FRIDAY EVENING June 9 1876

Financial and trade affairs locally present no changes deserving especial or extended notice to day Transactions are quiet and generally made on the basis of quotations The entire week has been one of a marked lack of animation in trade circles, and the next promises to be but little better this being near a period in the season when mercantile men are tolerably well satisfied if they can bridge over two or three months and make running expenses,
